

LOCAL VICTIMS IN LUND'S NET?

Minneapolis Speculator Who Shot Himself Is Supposed To Have Been Head Of Lund Co.

STAKED ALL ON WHEAT AND LOST

Hundreds Of Acres Of Dakota And Minnesota Land Have Been Sold By Representatives Of The Lund Company In Rock County.

Dispatches from Minneapolis, appearing in the morning papers and giving brief surveys of the career of John G. Lund, the "hand man," former millionaire, and democratic politician, who shot himself Wednesday to escape disgrace and a prison cell, have aroused considerable interest here owing to the fact that representatives of the Lund Land Co., supposed to be the same organization of which he was the moving spirit, have been engaged in business hereabouts for several years past. B. A. Emory, who had an office in the Merrill block about three years ago and subsequently moved to Michigan, was an agent for the concern; Elmore Hall Worth, who was a frequent visitor in the city as late as last winter, and H. B. Lund and a Mr. Sharp, who have been here within the past fortnight. In Orono, Wis., particularly, and in numerous other sections of the county these men found ready buyers for lands, and possibly mortgages on lands, in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

The two banks of which Lund was president were closed yesterday, the First National of Minneapolis being closed by order of the controller of the treasury at Washington upon the advice of National Bank Examiner P. O. Hicks, who reported the institution insolvent. The International State bank of Minneapolis was closed for three days by State Bank Examiner Schaefer after a conference with the stockholders, who announced, however, that the doors would reopen Monday.

Two girls, employees in Lund's office, are involved by his death. Alberta Logan, his stenographer, it has been discovered, signed mortgage papers for Lund which purport to show that she gave him thousands of dollars in money in mortgages. Lella Rice, another stenographer and clerk, did the same thing, according to affidavits in suits pending against Lund in the Hennepin county courts. It is believed that Lund used these spurious mortgages as security for loans. Incoming bankrupt Lund stated his affairs, according to his acquaintances, on whom he sold short and on Wednesday the market rose 5 cents. By the noon hour Lund had lost thousands of dollars. By 1 o'clock, when the market was closing at an advance of 5 cents, the one-time millionaire knew that he was doomed to death or disgrace. Five minutes before the market closed he ended his life.

For the last four or five years Lund's speculations in real estate were disastrous. Lately he had been speculating in wheat, in a last effort to cover his numerous shiftings. Ten suits on promissory notes covered by alleged fictitious mortgages had been brought against him in the last year. Already the lawyers had been getting their heads together to put him in jail. They had been hounding him day after day for weeks and months. One of them was in his office a moment after his suicide.

Lund's was one of the most spectacular careers in the history of the city. His schemes for obtaining money were unique. His principal method, the court records show, was to obtain money on personal notes, secured by worthless mortgages on lands in the western states. His victims live in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and the Dakotas. They are bankers, farmers, widows, and working people.

The Lund's figured prominently in society until Mrs. Lund's death a year ago. The palatial home, once the scene of many brilliant society events, has been vacant since she died.

John Lund, his brother, Oscar Lund, and a man named Peterson are said to have composed the Lund Land Co. and H. B. Lund, who is a frequent visitor here, is supposed to be a nephew of the suicide. Oscar Lund, who was here on numerous occasions last summer, is reported to be locked up in jail at Prescott pending his trial on a charge of forgery of $25,000.

BATTLESHIP FLEET IS DUE AT AUCKLAND BY SUNDAY

Will Be First Stop After 3850 Mile Voyage
From Hawaiian Islands.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 7.—The 176,000 inhabitants of the provincial district of Auckland are on the throes of expectation in anticipation of the arrival of the fleet of American battleships. Auckland is the first port in the New Dominion at which the fleet will touch, after an unbroken stretch of 3850 miles from Honolulu. The reception of the battleships will provide a notable spectacle, and one to which the people of New Zealand have been looking forward with keen interest for weeks past.

The fleet is due to reach port Sunday, but the official landing will not be made until the following day, according to the programme as arranged. The landing will be an imposing affair, the visitors marching in procession to the government house, under triumphal arches and past beautifully decorated buildings. The New Zealand volunteers will not be absent, and the federal officials, the mayors and municipal authorities of the chief cities of New Zealand will form the reception party, which will be headed by the governor-general, Lord Plunket.

A municipal welcome will be given Tuesday and will include a reception by the mayor of Auckland. In the evening there will be a state ball at government house, the men being entertained in various halls.

The entertainment committee has prepared a large number of excursions to places of interest, and Wednesday will be devoted chiefly to this part of the programme. Perhaps the most interesting of these trips will be that to Rotorua Lake, where there will be tournaments by the Maoris.

The bluejackets will be entertained at a municipal luncheon Thursday. In their honor there will be special matinees at the theaters and athletic sports and other forms of outdoor entertainment. All the places of entertainment will be thrown open free to the visitors.

Friday, the concluding day of the visit, will be given over to races and football and lacrosse matches, and a special entertainment for the surgeons of the fleet by the British Medical association of New Zealand.

The preparations for the entertainment of the visitors are practically complete. Excursion parties are arriving from Wellington, Dunedin, Christchurch and other cities and towns and by tomorrow night it is expected the crowd will be the largest that has ever been seen in Auckland. Thousands of persons will go out to the headlands to catch the first glimpse of the arriving vessels. As soon as the fleet arrived, Auckland will set home its enthusiasm in salutes and daylight fireworks.

Every American flag in Auckland was sold days ago, notwithstanding the fact that the dealers had brought on large stocks from San Francisco and Honolulu in anticipation of the demand. Business houses and public buildings are being decorated in an elaborate manner and in every part of the city the Stars and Stripes will fly on the day of the arrival of the fleet. At the suggestion of Lord Plunket the mayor of Auckland has requested the people to observe the day of the official landing as a general holiday. Scores of private homes will be thrown open for the entertainment of the officers and men of the fleet, and every effort will be made to assist the men in finding entertainment. Besides the public festivities supplied by the committee, there will be scores of dinners, athletic events and theater parties, at which the sailors will be guests of honor. During the entire period of their stay the use of the street cars will be free to the men wearing the American naval uniform.

Despite the opposition of the socialists and radicals the New Zealand government adheres to its original determination to spend the sum of $25,000 for the entertainment of the fleet. The government will bear the entire expense of the trip to Rotorua and a considerable part of the cost of the decorations of the city. Costly souvenirs have been prepared for presentation to Admiral Sperry and the commanders of the battleships, together with a special gift to be conveyed to President Roosevelt. Hand-some souvenir books giving views of the principal places of interest throughout New Zealand have been printed at government expense, and copies will be presented to every officer and man of the fleet. The cost of these souvenirs, which are of unusually handsome design and workmanship, is stated to be in excess of $5,000.

Wrapping Paper With Print's Name—Advertising as It Comes From Roll.

Advertising has been brought to such a point nowadays that the up-to-date storekeeper even has his name printed on his wrapping paper. To do this he has been required to buy his paper in different sized sheets and it has been much more costly than it would otherwise have been. Now comes a New York man with an invention which automatically prints a firm's name on a roll of paper as the paper is being drawn from the stand that holds it. To the top of the paper stand is fixed an arm, which terminates in a casing having a printing roll and an ink roll in juxtaposition. The casing is open on one side to allow the printing roll to rest against the paper. When the paper is drawn from the stand it sets the printing roll in operation, which, after taking ink from the ink roll, stamps the firm name on the paper.

A MASK FOR MOTORISTS

Protects Their Eyes and Nose From Dust and Driving Wind.

Automobilists who have felt that "fogging" did not afford them all the protection they required from dust and wind now have a device to fall back on. This is a mask which covers the entire head, and, as it was invented by a New Jersey man, it is fair to assume that he also had in mind its usefulness in resisting the attacks of mosquitoes. The mask is made of a piece of flexible fabric that can be rolled or folded into a small compass. It has openings for the eyes, nose, mouth and ears, and fits under the cap in such a way as to cover the face. Also tie strips are attached to the body piece which extend over the crown and the back of the head, and the device is held in position and keeps it from moving about on the face of the wearer. The eye openings are covered with glass, but the bottom edge of the nose piece is free to permit breathing. The openings for the ears are suitably small to prevent the ears from slipping through. The bottom of the mask is long enough to permit of its being tucked in the coat. For winter driving in stormy weather such a face protector could be made of some waterproof material.

Final Test.

Spongum—"I say, old man, in case I should die suddenly, will you make sure that I am really dead before they bury me?" Knox—"Yes; you may depend on me. I'll ask you to have a drink, and if you don't sit up and take notice, I'll tell the undertaker to go ahead and plant you."

BORES HOLES IN CORNERS

New Bit Braces Bore Holes in Corners of Different Angles.

Carpenters should erect a monument to a man in New York, for he has overcome the difficulty they have encountered for years of boring holes in corners. This man has invented a bit-brace that will bore a hole in any corner and at any angle and the man who uses it need not be a confectionist, either. The brace has a supporting bar of angular form that holds within it the rotating driver, one end of which engages and turns the socket that holds the bit. The cut describes this tool better than the mechanism can be explained in words, for a byword. The importance of this invention cannot be understood by people who have little use for tools, but it means that the corner borer no longer exists for carpenters and that the change from the old methods of working in such places is almost revolutionary.

HANDY FOR THE SICK ROOM

Wire Device Holds Spoon in Place on Neck of Bottle.

Skickson helps, like doctor's services, are never appreciated until needed, but those who have gained experience in such matters will be grateful to the California man who devoted his ingenuity to the invention of a contrivance that holds a spoon on a bottle. It is a simple matter, being merely a piece of twisted wire, but it solves a problem that has given nurses, professional and amateur, much trouble. The wire is twisted to form a loop, which fits around the neck of the bottle and rests on the shoulder. Two arms extend laterally, the one curved to hold the spoon. Most medicine leaves a substance on the bowl of a spoon which would stain woodwork or table cover if it were laid on either. The contrivance is that it has been necessary to have a tumbler or saucer to hold the spoon, and sometimes it got lost at that. There are other uses for the device besides those of the sickroom, and it will probably be found one of those little things of which people say "I wonder why nobody thought of that before."

Talkativeness a Disease.

The curd old doctor who told a nervous patient to stop talking and who would get well was more truthful than politeness. There is no doubt that constant talking wastes vitality and wears upon the nervous system. Often one of the first signs of a nervous breakdown is unusual loquaciousness.

The Smug Fellow.

"I don't see why Goodley should be unpopular with you all. He never speaks ill of anyone." "No, but he's one of these very smug fellows who can say: 'Oh, yes! Jones seemed very happy when I saw him last,' and say it in such a way as to give the impression that Jones was horribly drunk."

Pattience.

If a man were only as patient in business as he is in fishing what couldn't he accomplish.—Detroit Free Press.

Perils of Utilitarianism.

Any nation which should so narrow its energies as to follow what are called purely practical lines would soon fall behind its competitors, and see its intellectual life fade and wither. Any university which so restricted its field would be unworthy of its calling, and would discharge even the practical part of its high functions far less effectively.—Ambassador Bryce.

The Majority is Never Right?

The majority is never right. Never, I say. This is one of those society lies which a free, thinking man must rebel against. Who are they that make up the majority of a country's inhabitants? Are they the wise or the ignorant? I believe that we must agree that the ignorant are overwhelmingly in the majority everywhere on the wide earth. But it is never right that the ignorant should rule over the intelligent.—Henrik Ibsen.

TAFT TALKS TO VIRGINIA BAR

NOMINEE DELIVERS ADDRESS ON THE LAW'S DELAYS.

MACK NAMES COMMITTEES

Wetmore to Manage Democratic Finance and Atwood the Speaker—Senator "Bob" Taylor Calls on Bryan.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 7.—There was no reservation in the southern hospitality accorded to William H. Taft by the Virginia State Bar association here Thursday on the occasion of the address of the Republican candidate on the law's delay. His presence and introductory pleasantries were applauded by an audience representative of the social life of the old dominion, the burden of his speech met the expressed approval of the lawyers present.

At his conclusion, Mr. Taft was surrounded by members of the audience who presented themselves for personal acquaintance. A group photograph was taken under the trees with Mr. Taft in the center.

At the banquet at night, which brought to a close the twentieth annual session of the association, Mr. Taft responded to the toast "The President."

Mack Names Committees.
Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Chairman Norman E. Mack of the Democratic committee announced Thursday night before his departure for Chicago the appointment of a finance committee for the Democratic campaign with Moses C. Wetmore of St. Louis as chairman and John E. Osborne of Wyoming as vice-chairman; and a speakers' committee, with John H. Atwood of Kansas as chairman and Champ Clark of Missouri as vice-chairman. The finance committee is made up of 23 members and the speakers' committee is composed of 27 members.

Announcement was also made by Chairman Mack that Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas had been appointed to succeed David R. Francis of Missouri as chairman of the advisory committee.

Democratic Club Plan.
Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 7.—As the result of a visit to William J. Bryan Thursday of Senator "Bob" Taylor of Tennessee, who is here to deliver a Chautauque lecture, the national committee of the Democratic party, with the concurrence of Mr. Bryan, will soon enter upon a most elaborate plan for securing the sentiment of the country toward the standard-bearer.

This plan contemplates the formation of a national Democratic club, with state and county clubs as subsidiaries, whose duty it will be to report to the central organization data favorable or unfavorable to the national ticket. It is proposed also that these clubs shall poll the voters of the United States.

Taylor Is Optimistic.
"I have been in Kansas, Missouri and Indiana," said Senator Taylor. "To my mind Bryan has a better chance for election than Cleveland had in 1892. I found many Republicans in Kansas who told me they would vote for Bryan, and as for Indiana, the prospects for Democratic success are good." He predicted that Tennessee would go Democratic by 20,000.

Aside from this, the most important announcement from Fairview Thursday was the decision of Mr. Bryan to make an extended speech on the tariff question at Des Moines, Ia., August 21, and to spend the three following days in Chicago in consultation with Chairman Mack and others of the party leaders over the plan of campaign.

RUFFINO SAID TO BE MURDERER.

Black Hand Suspect Stabbed Man in Palermo, Sicily.

Milwaukee, Aug. 7.—Giuseppe Ruffino, held by the Milwaukee police for the Chicago and Rochester, N. Y., authorities as a black hand suspect, is said to be a murderer and fugitive from justice. Information to this effect was received Thursday from Montreal, where Ruffino's record is known.

Ruffino is said to be the son of the mayor of Palermo, Sicily. While there, he is said to have stabbed and fatally injured an enemy, fleeing from the country immediately. His father aided the son to escape and Ruffino came almost directly to the United States.

TRIUMPH FOR YOUNG TURKS

NEW MINISTERS ARE MOSTLY THEIR OWN NOMINEES.

Two Christians in Kiamli Pasha's Cabinet—Ovation Given the New British Ambassador.

Constantinople, Aug. 7.—The Young Turks have now completely triumphed. A new cabinet, practically composed of their own nominees and commanding public confidence, is established on a constitutional basis, the sultan having given up his claim to the right to appoint the ministers of war and marine.

Kiamli Pasha, who for the third time becomes grand vizier, throughout his career has struggled for a constitutional regime and thence has suffered exile for his opinions. His ministry, with two exceptions, is composed of new men of liberal view. Two of them are Christians, Gabriel Effendi, the minister of works, is an Armenian, and Prince Mavrocordato, the minister of agriculture, is a Greek. The new British ambassador, in driving in state Thursday to present his credentials to the sultan, received a tremendous popular ovation. His speech to the sultan conveyed the warm congratulations of the British government and the nation to Abdul Hamid in his wise decision to adopt a constitutional form of government.

Thursday a battalion of troops, which had just returned from Saloniki, forced open the prisons and liberated all criminals, even those under sentence of death, and then marched through the town, holding a peaceful demonstration in favor of the constitution.

OUTRAGE BY WHITECAPPERS.

Indiana Farmer Beaten and Tared and Feathered.

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 7.—Beaten to almost insensibility by whitecappers, perforated with small holes caused by a nail-pronged board, covered with tar and feathers, John Tribbey, well-to-do farmer, was found bound to a tree Thursday. Tribbey said he had been taken from his home by 18 masked men, who had tortured him.

It was learned that the whitecappers had visited the home near by of Miles Easie Smith, with whom he is alleged to have been on too friendly relations, broken in the windows and left a note warning her to leave the country with her father under penalty of death. Tribbey said he also had been ordered to leave within 30 days.

VIADUCT IS BLOWN UP.

Fifteen Persons Hurt and Much Damage Done in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Aug. 7.—Fifteen people were slightly injured and windows in all houses and factories within the immediate neighborhood were destroyed and the Harrison avenue viaduct suffered a $10,000 damage as a result of an attempt to destroy the viaduct Thursday night.

The viaduct is in course of construction and has been a matter of much contention during the last two city administrations. At one time Granger & Co. of Louisville, Ky., who are constructing the viaduct, employed non-union labor and it is claimed by some that a union labor fanatic is the author of the explosion.

Actor Drouet Is a Hero.

Sea Isle City, N. J., Aug. 7.—Robert Drouet, the actor, saved perhaps a score of lives in the bay off this city Thursday by a thrilling piece of heroism. RAILWAY SHOPS ARE DARK

CANADIAN PACIFIC ELECTRICIANS REFUSE TO WORK.

Three Carloads of Strike Breakers Arrive at Winnipeg—Trainmen May Go Out.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 7.—Thursday night all the Canadian Pacific railway shops were in darkness owing to electricians operating the light plant declining to work with non-union labor. Three coach loads of strike breakers reached here from St. Paul and Chicago, and those, added to the Japanese used in roundhouses and Italian and Galicians at work in other parts of the yards, gave some activity around the buildings. Porters on cars are now compelled to clean out their cars and every extra laborer that can be utilized by the company is being pressed into service.

Sixty union pickets have been placed on duty at the local shops, the company not being adverse to passive picketing which is not illegal. At some shops in far western cities armed police are on guard but this is not considered necessary here. All day at the shops everything was as quiet as could be.

The most striking feature of the situation was the placing of between 50 and 60 pickets at the various railroad terminals and in the vicinity of the shops to meet all mechanics coming into the city and dissuade them from going to work for the company. If they had any such intention, J. H. McVoy, local chairman of the strikers, said he had information from what he regarded as a thoroughly reliable source that a carload of strike breakers left Chicago Wednesday morning.

There is a report that the trainmen will go out on Saturday. This is denied by McVoy, but it is affirmed by all the strikers who will talk, and who assert that the whole system will be tied up by Sunday. Trainmen do not consist of engineers, firemen and conductors, but of switchmen, brakemen, baggage men, and some of the conductors. It was pointed out that there is a federation of conductors, engineers, firemen and telegraphers, all of whom work together in harmony. They form a most conservative organization which for a number of years have had an iron-bound agreement with the company.

DECLARED WORSE THAN CANCER.

Of the Two, Pangs of Toothache Are Less Easy to Bear.

"You of the younger generation," said the dentist, severely, "don't appreciate the importance of the conquest of toothache that dentistry has made."

"Toothache is the worst torture that ever afflicted mankind. Its pains—'lancinating' they are technically called—are worse than the pains of cancer. Worse than cancer; that is the truth; I have heard it from physicians, I have heard it from three old people whom cancer finally killed. They all said that the pain of cancer at its worst was mild beside the pain of the worst toothache."

"Toothache," drave DeQuincey to opium-eating. DeQuincey, too, says in his 'Opium Eater'—like all dentists, I have the passage by heart:

"No stronger expression of toothache's intensity and scorching fierceness can be imagined than this fact—that, within my private knowledge, two persons, who had suffered alike under toothache and cancer, have pronounced the former to be, on the scale of torture, by many degrees the worse. In both, there are at times lancinating pangs—keen, glancing, arrowy radiations of anguish; and upon these the basis of comparison is rested—paroxysm against paroxysm—with the result that I have stated."

ANTS AS WEATHER PROPHETS.

Their Method of Giving Warning of an Approaching Storm.

Ants as weather prophets afford new testimony to the cleverness of these small insects.

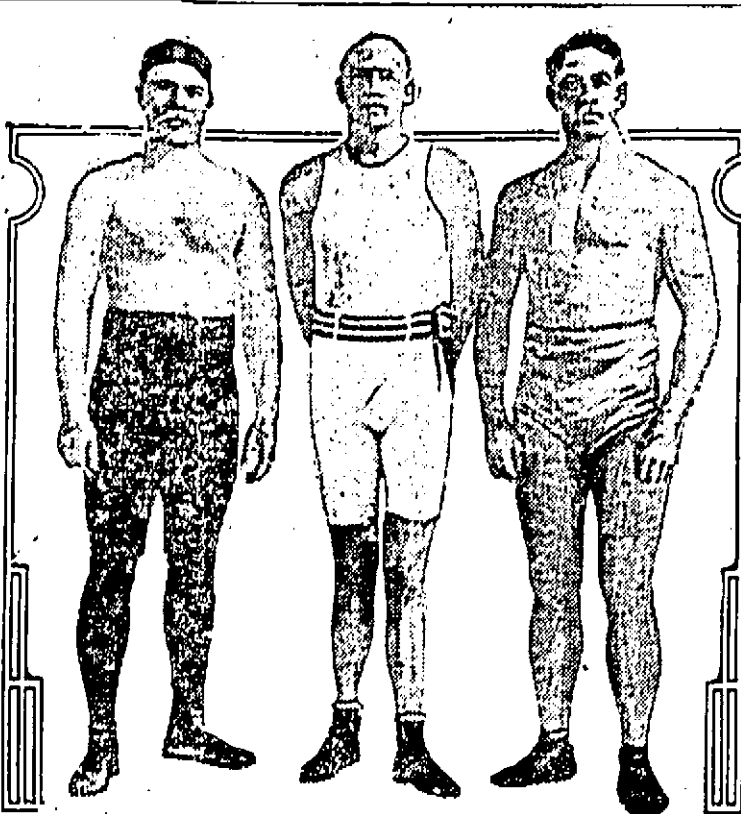

When you go out on a spring morning and find the ants busily engaged in clearing out their nests and dragging the sand and bits of earth to the surface you may be sure that no matter how cloudy it is there will be no rain that day and the probabilities are for several days of good weather.

If, however, you see the ants about the middle of a spring or summer afternoon hurrying back to the nest and a sentinel trotting out in every direction looking up stragglers and urging them to go home as soon as they can get there, you may figure on a rain that afternoon or night.

When the last of the wanderers is found the picket hurries in and the nest is securely sealed from the inside to keep out the water. It is seldom that ants are taken by surprise by the approach of a shower.

Show Men Like Apes.

Prehistoric paintings recently unearthed show man to have been like an ape. The only known examples of paintings of men by prehistoric cave decorators have been discovered lately by Prof. Rene Leavelle in the Portal grotto, a cave of Louthens, in Ariège, France, where Nougat already had found quaternary remains and human bones. About 40 sketches in black or red, only one in both colors, adorn the cave as frescoes, and two represent men of a primitive type, while the others show lions, bears and horses. Of the human figures one has a long head, with retreating forehead, while the other shows a remarkable apelike pose, with rounded back and arms pendant in front. There is a crouching bear, but the horses are mostly galloping and poorly drawn, although the forequarters of a horse are quite skillfully figured in black on one of the darkest walls of the cavern.

THE REAL RESOURCE

According to an article on "The Progress of the World" in the American Review of Reviews the real resource that can be depended upon to restore business to its former standards is labor.

Labor as a distinct interest, like capital, is chiefly concerned with being profitably occupied. Work for everybody at good wages, and under reasonable conditions, is what the wage-earning classes chiefly desire.

In so far as they have an economic motive that dominates their action in public affairs. For some months past, following the monetary panic of last autumn, there has been a widespread industrial depression, with the result of the stoppage of more than half of the mills and factories of the country.

Workingmen of republican convictions are not likely to believe that the full resumption of business activity would be accelerated by the election of Mr. Bryan. Businessmen as a class do not dislike change so much as they dislike uncertainty. They would regard Taft's election as involving less uncertainty than Bryan's. If the republicans are kept in full power, they will have to deal with three large situations affecting business.

First, they will be expected to amend the railway laws in order, on the one hand, to give the railroads a better chance to make agreements and to earn profits, and, on the other, to bring them at certain points under better regulation. Second, the Sherman anti-trust law must be modified so that it may not be a menace to legitimate business. Third, the tariff must be revised as quickly as possible. These things being done, there should for several years be no question of changes in the status that would affect conditions in a fundamental way. The result would be a period of well-justified prosperity.

GOMPERS' DILEMMA

That Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has placed both himself and organized labor in a serious dilemma by his actions is apparent to the close students of the political situation. He has assumed the role of political dictator to the wage-earner at the polls and has proclaimed at Lincoln that he would deliver the organized labor vote to William J. Bryan and Kern.

So, at last, there is to be a test of the claim of Gompers that he carries several millions of workmen's votes in his breeches pocket and can deliver them with equal facility to either party. Judging from expressions heard on every side, it is with feelings of undoubted satisfaction and relief that business and labor interests alike have witnessed this burning of Gompers' bridges behind him. It has long been the hope of well-known labor leaders, not in sympathy with Gompers, that he would make a test in other directions of his qualifications to lead voters at the polls. For instance, they would like to see Gompers himself run for office. Undoubtedly, they say, Mr. Bryan would lend his influence to get the political Mos of Labor a nomination; and that would probably lead to a settlement once for all of the question raised in the Maine campaign of 1906 whether Gompers had a title to American citizenship and a right to exercise the franchise in which he is meddling constantly.

Having once taken the plunge for Mr. Bryan and assured him of the support of labor, there can be no drawing back by Gompers. Mr. Bryan may repudiate the anti-injunction plank if he finds that the bill is as promulgated by Senator Patterson is correct, or he may "stand pat" if he can convince labor that the bill was amended before passing the senate so as to make a trial by jury peremptory. But Gompers cannot repudiate Bryan, no matter how actively he may wriggle. He is committed and must go on and deliver what odds and ends of the labor vote may consent to follow his leadership at the polls.

STILL SAFE

The state of Wisconsin is still safe politically. It can develop a few first class factional fights still, only they are along different lines than those from which the previous factional differences have sprung.

In the first assembly district Mr. Whitte asks nomination for the member of the assembly to succeed A. S. Baker of Evansville. Indications are that he will be nominated as his opponent has held some public office or other for the past fifteen years by which he has drawn a check from the state treasury.

Nolan's candidacy for congress creates considerable disturbance among certain localities where it is a crime to whisper anything but praises of the present member. However, Mr. Nolan continues his labors of seeking to represent a republican district with a republican congressman.

The district attorneyship fight appears to have progressed rapidly. In selecting a district attorney the voter should choose a man with experience and not permit personal differences with the individual to influence his vote. It is an important office and one which should be well filled.

The sheriff's fight is one of the best natured contests that has been seen for many years. Recently all four candidates were in Janesville and two stood on one corner talking to friends and each other while the other two were just across the street.

Stephenson has lost none of the votes he secured early in his campaign and will continue to gain until the primary day. McGovern and Hutton may both claim La Follette's support, but Stephenson claims the support of the people themselves.

Zeppelin's Real Service.

Milwaukee Free Press: Everybody who knows anything about the character of Count von Zeppelin and his self-sacrificing devotion to a great enterprise which has come to him in the very hour of success.

The count is a splendid type of the old, sturdy, unspiced German nobility, now giving way all too rapidly to a weak and decadent lot of self-seekers. He belongs to the ancient aristocracy of blood and iron that helped place the German empire on the map of the world in the glorious seventies of the last century.

Count von Zeppelin has passed the allotted three score years and ten, but he still labors with the energy and enthusiasm of youth. His whole mature life has been devoted to the problem of aerial navigation and he has spent his entire private fortune in experimentation with the great dirigible airship which now flies in ruins.

HALLUCINATION A 'STRONG' ONE.

He Was Sure Someone Entered His Room, Although Doubly Locked.

"I was lying in a hotel bedroom one morning," he said, "about half awake when I heard a key rattling in the door. Much to my horror, the door opened and the maid came in to make up the room, or at least so it seemed to me. I called out to her to leave and she did so. All this happened in a minute or less and I fell asleep again. When I woke up I remembered the incident clearly."

"When I came to look at the door, however, I found that it was not only locked from the inside with the key still in it, but that a bolt was also shot. I was sure that I had seen the maid enter, but when I asked her later if she had, she said that she had tried the door from the outside and hearing me call out had departed. As far as I can make out it must have been a very complete hallucination about seeing her, called up in my mind in my sleepy condition by my fear that she might enter. I wonder if that has happened to many persons?"

He Understood.

During a financial flurry a German farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told that the bank was not paying out money, but was using cashier's checks. He could not understand this, and insisted on money. The officers took him in hand, one at a time, with little effect. Finally the president tried his hand, and after a long and minute explanation, some intelligence of the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind. Finally the president said: "You understand now fully how it is, Hans, don't you?" "Yes," said Hans, "I think I do. It's like this, ain't it? You my baby takes up and wants milk, I get him a milk ticket."

MAIL ORDER ORIGIN.

System Grew Out of Failure of Grange's Business End.

MIDDLEMAN IS ELIMINATED.

When the Grange Stores Quit a Supply Agent Continued This Idea on the Catalogue Plan—Immense Growth From Small Beginnings.

The story of the rise of the so called mail order business is an interesting chapter in our commercial history. The spread of the craze—for it must be classed as such—resembles that of an ordinary epidemic against which no precaution is taken. The disease has until very recently been allowed to spread without even quarantine regulations. But from present indications its decline will be as rapid as was its rise.

The idea of selecting goods from a catalogue containing pictures of the articles and then ordering the articles thus selected by mail was the direct result of the failure of the business end of the grange movement, the grange store, writes Richard A. Haste in Maxwell's Talkman.

Not so many years ago, but before the telephone, the rural routes and the interurban electric lines had brought the town and the farm into the present close relations, there existed in the rural communities an active prejudice against townsmen generally and the retail merchant in particular. He was a "middleman" and wholly unnecessary.

He was looked upon as a human drone, a nonproducer, and as such not entitled to any fixed place in the economic scheme of civilization.

As the working bees every fall when the first frosts come to blight the flowers cast the drones from the hive, so the middleman was to be cut out of the equation of trade, eliminated from the problem, and through the grange store the farmer would deal directly with the manufacturer. Millions of dollars would be thus saved to the "workers" by this short cut across the commercial field.

The grange store would buy the produce of the farm and in turn sell to the farmer the essentials of life without profit either going or coming.

In carrying out this simple scheme the grange, not being acquainted with the mercantile business, employed agents to buy goods for the grange store, and the store was then run by a "hired man"—a man of more or less experience in handling retail trade, but who had no interest in the business. He was simply a hired man.

One of these supply agents was a firm the name of which now stands second if not first among the catalogue houses of today. This firm, if I am not mistaken, was then located in Milwaukee, and its business was to supply the grange stores of the middle west with goods to go into the market and buy as cheaply as possible for its principals.

For a few years the grange store flourished. There was much interest manifested in this new trade toy. It was boldly asserted that the day of the middleman, the retail merchant, had passed. But, like all complicated machines run by hired men, it got out of order and then stopped. The hired farmers found that instead of saving money by means of the grange store they had actually lost money. The grange stores were accordingly closed, and the stockholders charged up the little loss to experience and turned to the ever interesting discussion of the tariff on wheat.

With the passing of the grange store the firm above referred to was left without a business. But out of the wreck it saved two things that proved to be most valuable—a list of names of the farmers of the middle west and an idea. With this capital stock the first catalogue house was started.

It was a commercial inspiration born of the then conditions. But the discoverer was not left long in exclusive possession of this find. The pickings were so rich and the possibilities of exploitation so exceptional and safe that others entered the field until now the competition has become about as sharp as it is in the retail trade. Indeed, the original catalogue house—none genuine without our stamp concern—has been outfooted by a young rival which struts before the commercial world with a capital stock of $40,000,000.

Vine Covered Buildings.
The vine was when the presence of trailing vines on the exterior of buildings was largely a reminder of ruin and the symbols of neglect. Ivy, wistaria and moss were alike voted to be indicative of decay. But a change has come over the spirit of our dreams in this respect as in many other matters. Today a creeping vine attaching itself to a house or a block affords proofs of an aesthetic taste, and the custom has been largely adopted in some cities and towns of covering the walls of buildings with a perennial vine. Says the Clinton (N. Y.) Courier. Even so humble a plant as a morning glory is fast rising in popular estimation. Such adornments may serve a double purpose, hiding defects in the structure as well as adding beauty to the exterior. There is an instance in St. Louis where a skyscraper is thus decorated. The clad cottages are a theme for the poet and an inspiration to the painter. There is one objection to such covering for wooden buildings in that they sometimes retain the moisture caused by rains, but no criticism avails the case of brick buildings. We have a few instances in Clinton—and ought to have more—in which ivy has been successfully trained up two or three stories.

Humorous Typographical Error.
"Red Cross Society Will Fight Corbett" was the way a typesetter transformed the copy concerning a crusade against corruption.

IMMUNE TO GERMS OF TYPHUS.

Doctor's Mistake Would Have Been Serious But for Good Health.

A man in sound health need fear nothing from typhoid germs, according to evidence brought out at a London hearing of a damage claim by the proprietor of a Malvern "Hydro" against the local council for contaminating his establishment's water supply. Dr. Thresh, one of the greatest English experts on typhoid, was a witness. The bacillus, he said, is so minute that a drop of water may contain a population equaling the entire world.

"I've swallowed millions," he remarked, cheerfully.

"How did you like them?" inquired the judge, immediately curious.

"I enjoyed the pleasure of anticipation for three weeks," said the doctor, "but after that I felt happy. It was an accident, however, I was testing water said to contain typhoid bacilli. The weather was hot, and one day I swallowed a glass of water at a gulp. Too late I discovered that it was a glass into which I had put the typhoid germs. Had my health been such to have made me a good subject, I should have suffered. As it was, I felt no ill effects."

St. James' Day.

According to a saying that has long been current in London, "Whoever eats oysters on St. James' day will never want money." As a result Londoners, under the effect of this old superstition, begin to eat oysters on the 25th of July, instead of waiting for the coming of the first month with the "R." So far as can be ascertained, it makes no difference whether the oysters are eaten raw or cooked.

Dishonest Heroines.

The steady increase of crime among stage heroines is beginning to get serious. It used to be the men who did all, or most of the dreadful things in plays—I mean the picking and stealing, the forging and embezzling, and offenses of that kind. Now it is the women—and it is all the fault of the late Henrik Ibsen. Honesty cost his soul, notwithstanding.—M. A. P.

Welsh Clergy.

It is a disgraceful scandal that so many of the Welsh clergy should live in a state of acute poverty and literal beggary, and that no practical effort should ever be made to improve their condition by bishops and wealthy churchmen. The wonder is that in the face of this state of things anyone should consider the church establishment in Wales worth fighting for.—London Truth.

LOCAL PEOPLE IN BIG LUMBER DEAL

TO PURCHASE 2500 ACRES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR CO.

May Be Organized by Pendleton & Gilkey and Janesville Members of Forks Logging Concern.
If members in the employ of Pendleton & Gilkey, the firm which formerly conducted a lumber yard in Janesville, find conditions as represented, a number of Janesville people will probably become interested in a deal to take over 2500 acres of timberland in British Columbia, and to contain 400,000,000 feet of standing fir and cedar. The present owners of the property bought it a quarter of a century ago for $250,000 and will now part with it for $1,500,000. In order to swing the transaction a new half-million-dollar company will probably be organized.

George King on Scene
George E. King, secretary and treasurer of the Forks Logging Co., one of the Pendleton & Gilkey enterprises which is operating near Everett, Washington, returned home last evening from a trip to the Pacific coast. He not only inspected the logging company's plant, which is not running full blast at the present time owing to the slump in lumber prices, but also accompanied H. S. Gilkey and F. R. Pendleton on a trip through the Strait of Georgia to Vancouver and the edge of the tract in question which is located about seventy miles north of that city. Some of the trees, he says, are 300 feet high, measure from 8 to 10 feet in diameter, and will cut 100 feet.

Local People Interested
The Forks Logging Co., as such, will have nothing to do with this enterprise but many of the stockholders in the one concern will in all probability become identified with the new undertaking. Operations at the plant near Everett have been temporarily slackened down owing to the low market quotations on lumber. Janesville people and former residents interested in the logging company are: F. R. Pendleton, H. S. Gilkey, James Harris, president of the concern; James Field, vice-president; Don Farnsworth, Dr. J. F. Penber, A. J. Harris, Fred Capello, Mrs. Kate Field, and Mrs. Helen Sherer.

10-TON MONUMENT FOR GREGORY HALL ESTATE.

Remarkable Sales by Mrs. F. A. Dennett.

Delivery was made today to Johnstown of a ten-ton monument for the Gregory Hall estate. The monument is made of Barre, Vt., granite. It is possibly the largest piece of work turned out of Janesville for some time. It is composed of 3 pieces and required six teams of horses to move. The workmanship is very beautiful.

Another large sale was made to Mrs. Wm. Monzel whose monument is also to be of Barre, Vt., granite to be received by special car.
Mr. Wm. Dittmar of Chicago was so taken with the display of monuments shown by Mrs. Bennett and the excellent lettering that he closed a deal for a large job.

Mr. A. E. Mack, a gentleman from St. Louis, was a very pleased customer this week. He purchased a large monument of red Wisconsin granite to be erected in Forest Home cemetery, Chicago, Ill., and after purchasing, during the course of the conversation, discovered he was related to Mrs. Bennett by marriage.

A new car of dark granite has been received from Barre, Vt., and will be on display in the show-room by Monday next.

SHIPPED AYRDALES TO SILVER CITY

George McLean Sent Two Dogs to William Watson on New Mexican Ranch.

William Watson, formerly of Janesville and who now makes his home near Silver City, New Mexico, recently purchased of George McLean of this city two Ayrdale terriers. Mr. Watson, who is a son of John Watson, has a large number of Angora goats on his ranch. The kids of these goats are often killed by the wild cats and other small wild animals which are found near the ranch.

The two dogs were purchased to protect these animals from the depredations of the wild cats. This breed of dogs are noted for the ease and quickness with which they master smaller animals and Mr. Watson feels that he will have no further trouble after he gets the dogs on his ranch.

NO DECLINE IN JANESVILLE REAL ESTATE

Janesville is maintaining her well-earned reputation as being a prosperous, steadily growing city. Sales in the home addition which is being sold by Grover and Layman, are being up with a rush and the indications are that all of the lots in this desirable locality will be sold in a few days. The extraordinary easy terms of only one dollar down and then fifty cents a week without interest or taxes, may in a measure be responsible for the quick sale of these lots, but the fact that Janesville continues to flourish and to erect new homes and business blocks, is the basis of the steady demand for well located property. Janesville real estate grows better every year. Hard times do not affect it and with the promise of splendid crops this fall in all parts of the country, every indication is for another year of even greater prosperity and progress. There never has been a better time to buy in Janesville property, which houses values steadily and the growth of the city is sure and even, and real estate climbs steadily upward.

Scared by Drunk: Last night Officers Sam Brown and Sam Dora answered a call saying that a highwayman had attempted to penetrate a hold up on North Bluff street. Upon investigation it was found that an umbrella-wielding man had been passing through Janesville for a number of years had gone to sleep on the bank near the house while drunk and on awakening was unable to rise. A young couple who were driving by saw him crawling along and thought he was a highwayman crawling up to seize their horse. The man was turned loose this morning after having spent the night in jail.

BITS OF HUMOR

EVILRY TIME.
Teacher—What is velocity?
Pupil—Velocity is what a man puts a hot plate down with.

WORTH A TRIAL.
He—Do you think glasses would make me look more intellectual?
She—Well, if I wore you, I'd try them. They certainly couldn't hurt any.

THE DIFFERENCE.
Mrs. Nixed—Mrs. Oldwife has had two new dresses to my one.
Mr. Nixed—Quite so, dear, but Mrs. Oldwife has had two husbands to my one.

AT THE CLUB.
Dick—Are you going to hear Barkley's lecture tonight?
Stranger—Yes.
Dick—Take my advice and don't.
He's an awful bore.
Stranger—I must go. I'm Barkley!

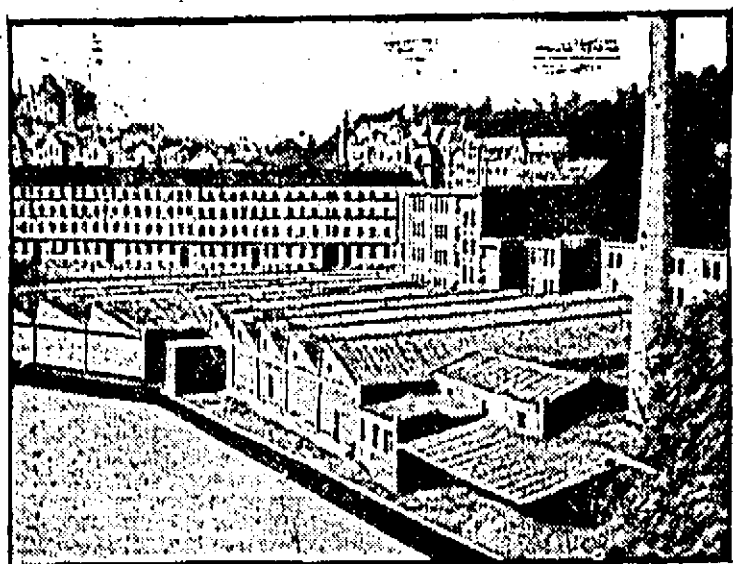

NO HINDRANCE.
She—Do you know I have an uncle who is a bank cashier?
He—Never mind, darling. I have you too much to let that stand in the way.

ALMOST STRANGERS.
Bertha—How is your friend, Miss Flaunter, now?
Ethel—She is no friend of mine.
I'm not on good terms with her now.
We only kiss when we meet.

SO ANNOYING.
Mrs. Dimpleton—Do you still keep up your friendship with the Jenk-insons?
Mrs. Hatterson—We see them very seldom, but we annoy each other with Christmas presents every year.

A typical Gorman lace factory at log in the background is one of the Paulen, showing a part of the build- erected at Paulen for the special pur-ing, one part having four stories and pose of improving the housing con-the other one story. The long build- ditions of the workers.

A LATE DISCOVERY.
"I'm surprised to hear that old Money-bags died insane. I never suspected it."
"No, neither did his nearest relatives until the will was read."

OVERBALANCED.
Mudge—It's funny how much easier it is to meet fellows I owe money to than to meet the fellows who owe me money.
Yahaley—Perhaps it is because there are so many more of them.

AT THE CONCERT.
Mr. Jorkins—I wish he wouldn't sing that song about "Falling Dew."
Mrs. Jorkins—Why not?
Mr. Jorkins—It reminds me too much of the house rent.

SO RUDDEN.
Gunner—I hear that a man was killed in a shooting gallery.
Clayey—Did some one accidentally shoot him?
Gunner—No; he smoked one of those clairs they give for hitting the bull's eye.

Giving More Difficult Than Getting.
The difficulty which is faced in America in connection with philanthropy is not to find the people who have the money to give, but to discover the ways in which money may be given wisely. Ideas for wise giving are much scarcer than money awaiting opportunity.

Not In This State.
Because an Indiana man was fined $100 for embracing the wrong woman the Milwaukee Sentinel advises: "The fore you hug a girl, take a good look at her." After that, in a good many cases, you may not want to hug her.— Washington Post.

Sacrificed Life for Horse.
It was testified at an inquest at Bryn (Wales) on a young man named Owen Richards, who was killed by a fall of rock at a local colliery, that he had liberated his horse, which was attached to a tram, and in doing so delayed his own escape and was killed.

With an Eye to Business.
A Billville jury, slow in arriving at a decision, and feeling the keen demands of appetite, sent the following note to the judge: "If you don't send us something to eat quick, we'll have to find the defendant guilty; but if you'll send us three meals a day we'll stay here till he's innocent."

Human Nature.
"Tis with our judgments as our watches; none are just alike, yet each believes his own.—Pope.

Argument.
Many a lawyer who puts up a good argument in court fails to be convincing at home.

A Hot Weather Proposition AND Square Deal For Your Money

Somewhere and sometime you will purchase a fine piano for your home and family.

The question arises will you give your order to the Mail Order House or will you buy from your own reliable piano dealer here in the city, who laughs when you laugh, who weeps when you weep, one who helps to beautify your beautiful city of Janesville, one who helps pay the taxes so that your children may obtain a good and fair education. Did you ever stop to think of this hot proposition? If not, do it now. The time has come when you want to think more before you act.

If you want a semi-Grand, a Parlor Grand, an Upright Grand, or even a self-playing piano, you can buy them right at home; yes, and save $50 to $100 on each instrument, and get a square deal every time.

Now all we ask is a fair proposition and that is this: Give us the first chance and when you have done this, you surely have commenced right and we can please you. You have a perfect right to buy where you please, but we think you will have no desire to look elsewhere after we submit our plans.

Remember, that we make it a business to sell the best semi-Grand and Parlor Grand or Upright Piano, also Self-playing Pianos manufactured in America, and save you money, while you get a square deal in the bargain. Our word is at stake and what we say you can depend upon.

Our pianos have been tested and tried by thousands who have pronounced them excelled by none for pure tone, light action, fine finish, even scale, and durability.

Now it is up to you. Will you give the Mail Order house, Chicago, Milwaukee or Janesville your trade? Think this matter over very carefully, then bring all your piano troubles to us and get a good piano and a square deal.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 7, 1868.—Weather.—The threatening clouds of last evening passed away after a light shower last night. Today the air has been cool and breezy and the wind high. The thermometer has indicated seventy four degrees.

Duo Notice.—A business man of this city, whose safe has been twice broken open by burglars, has not replaced the outside door at all on his safe since it was last blown off and has pasted over the little iron door, which bars one of the inner compartments a piece of paper, which bears the following inscription: "Nothing in here but papers. No money; no bonds. Key in the place hole. Don't break the door."

Runaway.—While the team of Mr. John Roehlinger was yesterday standing in front of a saloon just across the railroad track, a little daughter of Mrs. Comora clambered into the wagon among the beer casks, a part of which were full and a part empty, in some way the horses became frightened and started to run, the child meanwhile screaming with fright and from the effects of the injuries inflicted by the shifting casks. The team ran about four miles before it was stopped. Strange to say the child escaped with sundry severe bruises. The wonder is that she was not killed outright by the rolling casks.

Chickens Hatched By The Heat.—Mr. David Welch of Harmony in this county, informs us of a case of spontaneous incubation, quite as unusual as anything we have read of during the late heated term.

He says that having occasion to remove some eggs from a nest, he did so by placing them on the sleeve of a flannel suit, where they were forgotten until they were hatched out and the chickens attracted attention by their noise. Upon going to the spot Mr. Welch found that four lively chickens had been hatched out by the heat. We will add that Mr. Welch is a man whose word is not doubted by any one who is acquainted with him.

FAMILY TROUBLES CAUSED ARREST

Mrs. Bert Wheeler, Edna Wheeler and Herman Loeffler Spent Night in Lockup.
Mrs. Bert Wheeler, Edna Wheeler and Herman Loeffler were arrested last night on complaint of Bert Wheeler. Wheeler alleged that his wife was misconducting herself.
The pair have been living apart for some time and Mrs. Wheeler has been living on Hickory street with her husband's sister. The house formerly occupied by Mrs. Dohls, who went to the county house some time ago on account of sickness and the two girls took up their residence there.
Shortly before midnight Loeffler, who lived in the house when Mrs. Dohls was there, stopped to get some clothing of his, which he had left there. Wheeler, who was watching the house, saw Loeffler go in and at once sent a hurry up call for the police and the two girls and the man were placed under arrest.
This morning the girls said that when they returned from down town last evening they found all the dishes the looking glass and some of the furniture. They accuse Wheeler of breaking into the house during their absence.
This morning Judge Fifield after hearing the stories of the quartet told Wheeler that he did not have sufficient grounds for a complaint against his wife, and the three who had been arrested were turned loose.
Bert Wheeler still has an undiminished case hanging over him for abusive language, brought upon a complaint made by his wife.

In behalf of the friends assembled, Chas. Hougins, Jr., with a few well chosen words, presented Miss Wheeler with a beautiful silver teaspoon and expressed the thoughts of all present by wishing her a long and happy life. She was also presented with a beautiful china cup and saucer of the Japanese design by her cousin, Mrs. G. E. Bishop, who with her husband, has been enjoying the hospitality of the Wheeler home. Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott.

Aug. 9th, 1908.
David and Goliath—I. Sam. xvii-38-43.
Golden Text—In the Lord put I my trust. Ps. xli.
This lesson does not lend itself easily to a verse by verse discussion, hence the following questions are based upon the lesson-story and its suggestions.
Does the fate of a nation ever materially depend upon one man, according to the teaching of history? (This question is to be answered in writing by members of the club.)
Was David's conquest of Goliath natural or supernatural?
Could God just as easily have performed this feat with a man who had had no previous experience with a sling?
Did God have in view this event of the slaying of Goliath, in David's previous training with the sling and stone?
Does God always arrange to give his children a suitable present training for the work which he has in store for them in the future?
Does God always provide a way by which every enemy, or barrier, to the accomplishment of our life's work, can be vanquished?
May a strong man, in the long run, who has espoused a cause opposed to God, sometimes be successful?

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

THIS SLED NEEDS NO HILL

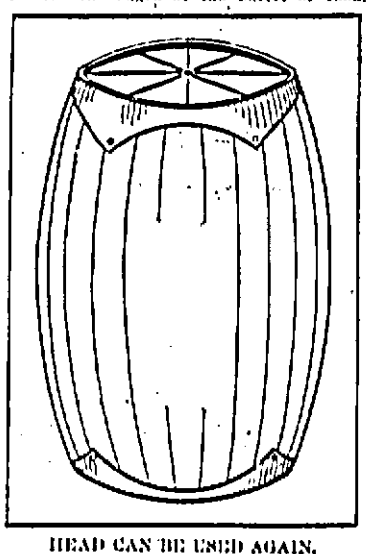

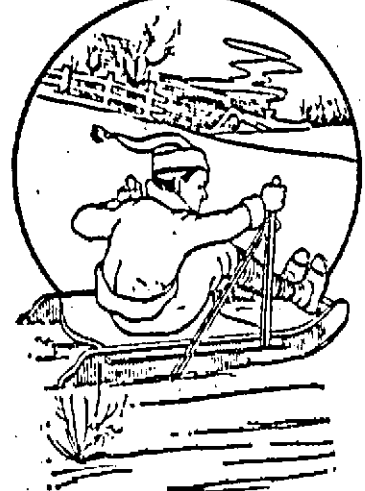

METAL-HEAD FOR BARRELS

Propelled or Guided by Means of Levers on Level Ground.

Maybe it is because children are plentiful in Utah that an inventor in that state devoted his time toward making the small boys' lot a little happier. As a result, he has devised a sled that can be propelled by hand on level ground or even up a slight grade, and without kicking out the heels of the shoes. This sled is propelled by two levers, one on each side,

Each is removed and often tilted—Necessity for Hoops.

Three birds have been killed with one stone by the Iowa man who invented the metal head for barrels and casks. This head has not only the advantage of being easy to remove, but it can be used again, if need be, and, unless the contents of the barrel be some flammable substance, hoops are not necessary in holding the staves in place. The head is made of a square metal sheet, with a circular section pressed in it, forming a groove that will receive the edges of the barrel or cask.

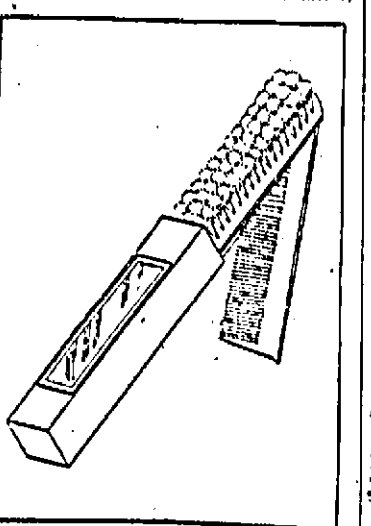

The corners are then turned down over the sides and fastened with fasteners that, unless it is not necessary to be a sub-blower to open a barrel with such a head and the advantages of the device will be appreciated by any person who has tried removing the head of a barrel. The metal head is also provided with a series of bracing ribs, like the spokes of a wheel, that is so suitably constructed that it can be used many times. The manner in which the corners overlap and bind the staves into position makes the whole barrel much stronger.

A BOON TO TRAVELERS

Packet Toilet Case Contains Brush, Comb and Small Mirror.

There are packet combs, pocket mirrors and brushes small enough to be carried in a pocket, but it has remained for a Pennsylvania man to give us the pocket toilet case. Thereby he has earned the gratitude of that large percentage of the traveling public that does not need a bag and does not like to use public toilet articles. The packet toilet case is a small oblong box with a mirror on the back. A brush that looks like an overgrown toothbrush fits in the box and a comb of the same dimensions is slipped to the right and folds over on the back of the latter.

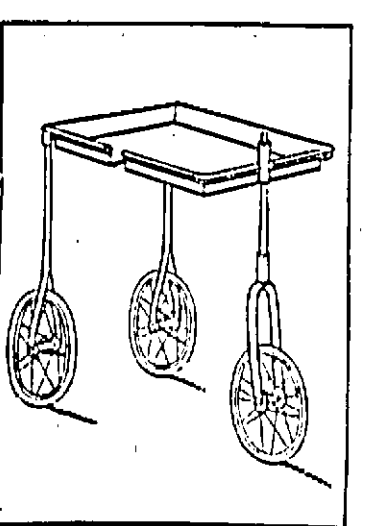

A HYGIENIC HILL

so that the whole occupies about the space of a small mouth organ and yet makes the owner independent of hotel and Pullman facilities. Aside from its convenience the hygienic value of this invention is hard to overstate, as many public places are contracted by the use of public combs and brushes. People who travel to any extent on short trips that do not require them to carry a bag will find one of these outfits almost indispensable, and they will be a boon to those employed in offices, where the toilet facilities are limited.

A TRAY ON WHEELS

Convenient Device for Restaurant or Store Use.

A much-needed article for restaurants, club stores and hotels has been supplied by a North Dakota man, who has invented a portable tray, or truck, that has many uses. This truck is modeled somewhat after the "cocktail wagon" that have been in use for years in clubs for the purpose of serving drinks, but the wheels are more utilitarian. The device consists of a framework of hollow tubing and is rectangular in form, supported on three legs, with wheels at the bottom. The tray bears out at the sides and the curve of the rim rests on the frame. This tray, therefore, can be removed at will and cleaned, or can be used without the frame. The truck will be found of great convenience in restaurants or clubs, as meals can be brought from the kitchen to the dining-room on it and dishes washed away on it. There will be much less breakage of tableware and guests will have less cause to shudder than they did in the days when waiters rushed by with four dishes piled high on a small tray balanced above their heads. In stores the truck can be used to carry goods rapidly from one department to another and, being of good height, it will not be necessary to stoop to load it.

WILL SAVE DISHES

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY

"Not! They can't drive me out! Telephone over and ask Graydon to stop here on his way up this afternoon."

The opening and closing of the outer door attracted their attention. Droom peeped forth. In spite of himself, Bansemmer started and his eyes widened with sudden alarm. A glance of apprehension passed between the two men.

"It's that Deever boy from Judge Smith's," reported Droom.

"Tell him to get out," said Bansemmer, with a breath of relief.

"I thought it might have been"—began Droom with a wry grin.

"Nonsense!"

"It is a bit too soon. They haven't had time."

As Droom left the room Bansemmer crossed to the window and looked down into the seething street far below. He saw that his hand trembled and he tried to laugh at his weakness.

For a long time he stood there, his unseeing eyes focused on the hurrying masses, his ears alert for unusual sounds from the outer office.

"If it were not for Graydon," he was muttering between set teeth, "God, how I hate to have him know!"

Droom had told Eddie Deever to "get out," but Eddie was there to talk and he talked to, so he failed to take the hint.

"Say, I haven't seen you since you played the hero up in the fashionable part of town. Gee, that was a stunner! I'll bet old man Cable rewards you in some way. What's your theory about the holdup?"

Droom looked up sharply. For the first time there shot into his mind the thought that the breezy boy might be a spy.

"I haven't any," he replied shortly. He was trying to remember if he had ever said anything incriminating to the boy.

"How'd you happen to be over there just at that time?"

"I haven't time to talk about it. Please don't bother me. It happened three days ago, and I've really forgotten about it. Don't throw that cigarette into the wastebasket. Haven't you any sense?"

"God! You don't suppose I'm going to throw it away, do you? There's half an inch of it left. Not me! Say, I've heard your boss has quite a case on Mrs. Cable. How about it?" He almost whispered this.

"You shouldn't talk like that."

"Oh, you mean that gang about people living in glass houses? Gee! Don't worry about that. Chicago is a city of glass houses. A blind man could throw rocks all day and smash a hole in somebody's house every crack. I believe the holdup man was one of those strikers who have been out of jobs all winter. Smith thinks so."

"Who?"

"Judge Smith."

"That's better."

"Did you see his face?"

"What are you, huh—a detective?"

"Rough-looking says I'll make a better policeman than lawyer. She's sore at me for taking Miss Throckmorton to Mann's Gail's the other night. Fellow stood on the piano and sang the dearest song I've ever heard. But, gee! I don't think Miss Throck was so much in the mood to listen. I mean, say, on the dead, do you think you could identify that fellow?"

"Look here, boy; if any one ever asks you whether I'd know that man's face if I saw it again you just say that I'd know it in a thousand. I saw it plainly."

"Eddie gulped suddenly and looked more interested than ever."

"Do you think they'll get him?"

"They will if he talks too much."

"I hope so, Ray, how's that new pab out coming on?"

"I'm not making a patent. I'm making a model. It's nearly completed."

The outer door opened suddenly, and an old gentleman entered.

"Is Mr. Bansemmer here?" he asked, removing his silk hat nervously.

"Yes, Mr. Watts. I'll tell him you are here."

Watts, the banker, confronted Bansemmer a moment later, an anxious, hunted look in his eyes. John Watts was known as one of the meanest men in the city. No one had beaten him in a transaction of any kind. As hard as nails and as treacherous as a dog, he was feared alike by man and woman.

Watts, perhaps for the first time in his self-satisfied life, was ready to bow knee to a fellow man. A certain young woman had fallen into the skillful hands of Counselor James Bansemmer, and Mr. Watts was jerked up with a firmness that staggered him.

"Mr. Bansemmer, I have come in to see if this thing can't be settled between us. I don't want to go into court. My wife and daughters won't understand that it's a case of blackmail on the part of this woman. Let's come to terms."

Bansemmer smiled coolly. It was impossible to resist the temptation to toy with him for awhile, to humble and delicious Banana Cream.

This recipe is highly recommended by one of our correspondents; try it for dessert tomorrow.

Peel five large bananas, rub smooth with five teaspoonsful of sugar. Add one teaspoon sweet cream beaten to a stiff froth, then add one 10c. package of Lemon Jell-O dissolved in 1½ cups boiling water. Pour into mold and when cold garnish with candied cherries. Serve with whipped cream, or any good pudding sauce. JELL-O is sold by all Grocers at 10c. per package.

humiliate this man who had destroyed hundreds in his juggernaut ride to riches. Skillfully he drew the old man out. He saw the beads of perspiration on his brow and heard the whine come from his voice. Then in the end he sharply changed his tactics.

"See here, Watts, you've got a wrong impression of this affair. I don't like your inferences. I am not asking you for a cent. I wouldn't take it. You have just offered me $25,000 to drop the affair. That's an insult to my integrity. I've investigated this girl's claim pretty thoroughly, and I believe she is trying to fleece you. I have given up the case. None of that sort of thing for me. She'll go to some unscrupulous lawyer, no doubt, but I am out of it. I don't handle that kind of business. You have insulted me. Get out of my office, sir, and never enter it again."

"Give me that in writing," began the wily banker, but Bansemmer had called to Droom. Eddie Deever was standing near the door, almost doggedly curious.

"Show Mr. Watts the door, and if he ever comes here again call the police. He has tried to bribe me."

Watts departed in a dazed sort of way, and Droom closed the door.

"Are you still here?" he demanded of Eddie Deever in such a manner that the young man lost no time in leaving.

"There goes $25,000," said Bansemmer, with a cold grin.

"I guess you can afford to lose it," muttered Droom. "It was sick, I suppose, but it's probably too late to help."

"Have you telephoned to Graydon?"

"Not yet."

"Don't."

"Change of heart?"

"Change of mind."

"That's so. You haven't any heart."

new ones were minus the explosive power. He grinned as he replaced the weapon and closed the desk. Dropping the cartridges into his coat pocket, he returned to his own desk, chucking as he set to work on his papers.

"I won't betray him to the law, but I've fixed it so that he can't escape it in that way."

Bansemmer's man informed him upon his arrival home that Mr. Graydon would not be in for dinner. He had left word that Mrs. Cable was very much improved and that he and Miss Cable were going out for a long drive—in a hansom. It was his intention to dine with Mr. and Miss Cable very informally.

Bansemmer sat in surly silence for a long time trying to read. A fierce new jealousy was growing in his heart. It was gradually dawning upon him that the Cables had alienated his son's affections to no small degree. The fear grew upon him that Graydon ultimately would go over to them, forgetting his father in the love for the girl. Resentment, strong and savage, flooded his heart. He could not eat dinner. He was full of curses for the fate which forced him to dine alone while his son was off rejoicing with people whom he was beginning to hate with a fervor that pained him. Jealousy, envy, malice, fired his blood.

He went out and bought the evening papers. The thought came to him that Graydon had heard the stories and was deliberately staying away from him. Perhaps the Cables had been talking to him.

"If heaven," he grated as he paused in front of his home, "if she's turned him against me I'll turn this city into anything but a paradise for her. What a fool I've been to wait so long! I've given her the chance to tell her side of the case first. She's made the first impression. What could I have been thinking of? Droom was right. I should have demanded loss of her. A man is never too old to be a fool about women. Oh, if she's turned that boy against me!"

He did not finish the thought, but started off swiftly through the night toward the Cable home. He had no especial object in view; it was simply impossible for him to conquer the impulse to be near his son. Like a thief he lurked about the street in the vicinity of Cable's house, standing in the shadows, crossing and recrossing the street many times, always watching the lighted windows with hateful eyes. It was after 8 o'clock, and the night was damp with the first breath of spring. There was a slight chill in the air, but he did not feel it, although he was without an overcoat.

The lights on the second floor, he knew, were in Mrs. Cable's room. In his mind's eye he could see Graydon there with the others listening to the story as it fell from prejudiced, condemning lips—the pathetic, persuasive lips of a sick woman. He knew the effect on the chivalrous nature of his son; he could feel the coldness that took root in his boy's heart.

Ought to Be Able To.

Does It Do The Work?

Soap that does is cheap. Soap that does not, is dear.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap DOES THE WORK.

A five cent cake of P. & G. Naphtha Soap will last longer and do more work than two bars of ordinary laundry soap, costing, say, 3 1/2 cents each; or three bars of cheap soap costing 2 1/2 cents apiece.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the cheapest soap you can buy—because it is the best value.

It saves time; and time is money.

It saves labor; and labor is worth money.

It saves clothes; and clothes cost money.

The naphtha in it LOOSENS the dirt; the soap CLEANSSES.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is so much better than any other laundry soap that it is worth your while to go ten blocks out of your way to get it.

But it is not necessary to do that—it is almost a certainty that your grocer sells it.

5 Cents a Cake—Worth More.
